With more than 20 years experience in Washington, D.C., Julie Pawelczyk serves as a legislative advocate on behalf of multiple nonprofit and corporate clients. She has extensive experience working with companies developing medical technology, as well as organizations focused on health and education programs, such as patient advocacy groups, child protection programs, medical research, and elementary and secondary education.

Ms. Pawelczyk began her Washington career as staff to Rep. Jack Davis (R-IL), before joining several different lobbying firms where she represented nonprofit clients with interests in higher education, elementary education, health services, and scientific research - including biomedical and behavioral research. For the last 15 years, her advocacy efforts have focused on federal budget and appropriations.

Ms. Pawelczyk received her bachelor's degree in journalism from the University of Illinois. She holds a Master of Arts in Liberal Studies with a concentration in social and public policy from Georgetown University.
